Alix Rousseau is Mountain View High School's September 2021 Student of the Month.

Alix is a current senior who stands out as both an excellent student and community member. She is enrolled in challenging classes like AP government and macroeconomics, AP literature, Geometry and Algebra 2, and Learning Skills.

Along with balancing these classes, Alix is also the founder and co-president of the humanitarian club INARA at Mountain View High School, which she founded during her sophomore year. This club is a chapter of the INARA organization that fundraises for war-wounded refugee children; since Alix has been running the club, she has led fundraisers that have raised over $3,000 for INARA (the International Network for Aid, Relief, and Assistance). Her commitment to think about the world and how she can get involved to make it a better place shines through to her teachers and those around her!

Born in France, Alix moved to the United States when she was in elementary school. She is fluent in French, and language classes are among her favorite subjects, along with history.

Alix is also an avid swimmer. She has been a part of the Mountain View High School swim team for three years and has also been swimming competitively outside of school for Palo Alto Stanford Aquatics for seven years. She also coaches swimming as a junior coach at the Los Altos Country Club.

In her free time, Alix enjoys activities such as sailing, photography, videography, and painting!

In college, Alix hopes to major in history and then attain a Master's degree in international relations in order to pursue a career in journalism. She has explored her interest in journalism in high school through individually interviewing several award-winning journalists like CNN chief international correspondent, Clarrisa Ward.

Congratulations Alix!
